

Hash Report

Date 16 09 12
Hash run no. 1319
Venue Plume of feathers Portscatho
No. Hashers 25
No. dogs 0
RA,s LBW
Run score 70
Pub score 99

Hash reporter Brooke Bond

New hasher Marie Askin

With some very dodgy directions we all arrived at the free car park.. Marie Askin was given a beer for her first hash She drunk none of it and threw it over her shoulder. Nobbys nuts hobbled out from his lift with his broken leg and crutches.[Done whilst playing tag with his grandson playing tag around a park bench].The sun was shining and we were off after being informed there was a charlies route and that if you were not running please go on the one mile shorter route. Some of the hash markers had disappeared. It was either rain the night before or the slugs had eaten the flour. We headed towards the coast via a Morlaix arrow, which most of us ignored. It was more of an amble than a hash and definitely the slowest I have been on. The Charlies route had various eateries along it and Ringpull studied everyone for the price of rooms and menus. The hash halt was on the beach and was seventies style with pineapple and cheese on sticks and cheese straws. Slowly the non charley runners turned up but no Droop. In case he turned up PMT hid all the salt and vinegar crisps. Above the beach was a busy café which was featured a lot on Caroline Quentins Cornwall.

At the end of the hash halt there was an on on into the sea. Detonator, Not a Full Shilling, Ringpull, All Night long and Foetal Attraction went in. It was then back along the cliff path via the car park and down the hill to the pub. Some of us lazy sods, moved their cars half way down the hill.

Nobbys Nuts had a lift via Gonzo and was lucky to get a space.

Down Downs:

Not a full shilling and Foetal attraction for being hares.

High and Mighty for preferring to drive round, than use the King Harry ferry.

Droop for missing the hash halt He was duly presented with a pack of Salt and Vinegar crisps.

Don't Blame Me for baulking at buying a round in the pub.

Horny Flasher for eating a scotch egg when he is a vegetarian.

Blue Rinse for using the seven dwarfs as a password.

Dopey for asking how much shorter was the mile shorter Charlies route.

Tantrum for window shopping.

Gromit for asking the back hare if they were at the back..

The end.