Before we gathered to receive instructions from the Hares some of the Hashers had made much use of the toilets at the Pub, this was before any alcohol had been consumed (presumably, given the time of the day), Perhaps they were getting rid of the previous nights booze, or are some of the Hashers becoming old and incontinent? I think the answers are yes to one question and possibly yes to the other!

Mary Poppins was given a Down Down for being a visitor, although how many times she can Hash with Truro and still be a visitor is a question I'm still pondering. However it was nice to see her again.

Having received instructions from the Hares we set off from the pub car park to be immediately greeted with a check. Papermate gets very teasy if there is no circle at the start of the Hash, probably because he's usually late arriving, but he's in Cambodia at InterHash, so why should the Hares worry, would someone report them?

A few Hashers including your scribe, checked up the steep hill at the back of the Pub, and came back down again having found a cross. We then set off through the village into the Roches Wood at Kennall Vale.

It was good to see the Hooker/Liability team's new dogs Ben and Holly enjoy their Hashing.

After much; stream wading, jumping, splashing (you know who you are), leaf throwing (by Furry and Sore Arse on to those who waded in the stream under the bridge) and hashing through the lovely woods we alighted upon the Hash Halt where food and drink was dispensed by the Hares to the grateful Hashers.

Following the Hash Halt the return leg was a short Hashing distance away back to the Pub.

Later, outside the pub, Down Downs were dispensed to the Hares and to the Hashers for misdemeanours and naming as follows:

1. Latex and Shite for being the Hares.
2. Sue was named PC69, there was some talk of small sizes, however everything looked fine to me!
3. Horny Flasher for wearing a leaf.
4. Skids for competing with dogs. A cocking legs competition?

Scores:

Pub: 7.2 (The Lager was iffy, I suspect that the pipes needed a good clean)

Hash: 168

Thanks to the Hares for the Hash and for the Hash Halt. The Hash was an unusually short one but was set in lovely countryside.

On On.

Droop.

PS. Apparently Hap is shortly going to have a couple of her (in)famous raffles. Will Charlotte be buying tickets? Answers to: hap@th3raffels.org.uk.
